Coalition Members and Community Partners,

Last year's Annual Report was all about overcoming obstacles - figuring out how to reach our community in the midst of a pandemic and adapting as best we could. If I had to select a theme for this year, it would be moving forward. Now, we are proficient in working together virtually (even if we do still forget to unmute ourselves sometimes). We are starting to attend in-person events. We recognize each other without masks. And, we've learned to work in a hybrid format that makes us even more accessible to the greater community.

Looking through this report, it has been so fun to see the progress we've made as a Coalition. Our fiscal year started with 60 of us coming together to paint, start to finish, a Suicide Prevention mural in less than a week. We spent a large part of our year working with the Ohio Board of Pharmacy to mandate warning labels on opioid prescriptions. We created a Summer Challenge and did several media interviews to promote the Digital Detox campaign. We piloted the Youth Leadership in Prevention program that started with three schools and has now expanded to eleven.

These were all big goals; huge ideas that I admittedly wasn't sure would work. If our volunteer group hadn't advocated so hard, I'm not sure I would have ever agreed to the mural - one of the highlights of the year. I was convinced we would never hear back from the Board of Pharmacy after sending the letter. I wasn't sure anyone would show up to our Youth Leadership in Prevention interest session.

But, we did all these things and more. And that is all because of YOU, the volunteers. You are the boots on the ground in the community, seeing the problems and coming up with ideas to solve them. You encourage me, the Executive Team and the Coalition to dream big, make adjustments and continuously improve. You inspire an entire community of people that true change can happen with a small budget, a little bit of tenacity and a whole lot of teamwork.

I hope you take some time to read this report and see where you fit in. You have each left a mark on our success stories and contributed to our impactful measurables (even our 114 new members this year!). I know that we will only continue to grow from this year's successes.

On a personal note, I need to give a special thank you this year to the ADAMHS Prevention team, and our MCPC Advisory Committee, especially Taniayah O'Quinn-Sims, for being the most wonderful support system while I was on maternity leave and raising our newest Coalition member. This group kept the ship afloat, continued to make adjustments and improvements, and allowed me the time to be with my family, knowing the Coalition was in great hands. From the bottom of my heart, thank you for your talents and empathy.

I look forward to the amazing impact this Coalition will have throughout 2023 and beyond.

Gratefully,

Colleen Oakes

MISSION

Our mission is to mobilize Montgomery County to prevent youth substance use and promote positive mental health through implementation of evidence-based prevention strategies and community collaboration.

VISION

Our vision is a community where every individual lives a substance-free life with optimal mental health.

PERSONAL AGREEMENT

As a member of the Montgomery County Prevention Coalition (MCPC), I understand the need for respectful collaboration between all members. As a growing, diverse community coalition, I understand and value our differences. This valuing of diversity can only take place when we have a safe space where everyone is welcome to have brave conversations.

I know that everyone is here because they want to advance the mission of the MCPC to prevent substance use and promote mental wellness. We are all part of the MCPC and represent the communities that we live in and serve.

I understand that we are all human and have diverse skills and knowledge in building inclusive communities. Everyone's unique experiences and backgrounds make us better as a coalition.

Growth from within can be difficult. With the support of other coalition members, I am able to examine my personal biases, understand the perspectives of others and broaden my understanding of people who are different from me.

I take responsibility for:

- » Entering discussions and meetings from a place of curiosity
- » Assuming good intentions
- » "Calling in" other members of the Coalition and offering feedback without shaming or judgment
- » Asking clarifying questions before reacting
- » Recognizing and struggling with my own sensitivities
- » Respectfully communicating concerns
- » Respecting the confidentiality of all personal information shared by coalition members

The MCPC Personal Agreement was created in collaboration with community partner, The National Conference for Community and Justice of Greater Dayton (NCCJ).

WE ARE BETTER AND STRONGER WHEN WE WORK TOGETHER.

PARTNERING TOGETHER FOR ONE GOAL

By using local survey data to better understand the individuals we work with, our goal is to reduce substance misuse and promote positive mental health among young people in Montgomery County.

The below statistics are aggregate data from surveys conducted with Montgomery County 7-12 graders.

YOUTH LEADERSHIP IN PREVENTION (YLP)

The Montgomery County Prevention Coalition primarily exists to serve the youth in our community by preventing youth substance use and promoting positive mental health. However, when you look around an MCPC meeting, what you typically see are adults! This led MCPC leadership to create the Youth Leadership in Prevention program, which brings youth voices onto the Coalition. We truly believe that we can't serve our youth adequately if we don't listen to their needs.

The Youth Leadership in Prevention program (YLP) was created to offer grants to local schools who create peer-to-peer prevention groups. These groups are student-led, but adult supported. The MCPC has a YLP steering committee made up of volunteers that support the schools, offer feedback on the program and design training for the students and their advisers. For the 2020-2021 school year, 3 schools were selected through an application process to be members of the pilot program. "Through the support of this program, our student leaders were able to gain valuable training in healthy coping and living, which passed down to the 60+ group members," said Amy Ostdiek, adviser for the student group at Oakwood High School.

This grant funding allowed for several new and creative initiatives to be implemented in our schools. Students at Oakwood High School created a supportive lunchtime environment with board games, activities and educational opportunities. This group also created a meditation garden to add some green space to the school environment, provide an alternate activity during lunch and break times, and allow students a space to bond while learning a new skill. Additionally, students created a mental health library with books that specifically highlighted LGBTQ+ characters.

Over 40 students at Valley View High School championed the cause, creating "Denim Day" in April to bring awareness to sexual assault initiatives. They also shared vaping prevention information on posters and signage around the school and in bathroom stalls. "The Youth Leadership in Prevention grant we received has allowed our students to have a voice and be able to make a difference in our community. They are gaining valuable experience on how to work with a budget and make decisions by interpreting school data to determine areas of need," said Amanda Phillips, adviser at Valley View High School.

This program is growing rapidly, as 11 schools have been selected to participate in the program for the 2022-2023 school year. Funding for the Youth Leadership Prevention program comes from the Montgomery County Human Services Levy.

SUICIDE PREVENTION MURAL

With you, the world is complete.

This message is now displayed at the corner of a busy intersection in Old North Dayton as a simple reminder for Montgomery County residents, thanks to the volunteers on the Montgomery County Prevention Coalition.

When business owner Marty Smallwood decided to paint the wall outside his building, he wanted a mural that meant something to his Old North Dayton community – a message that provided hope during trying times that would address the growing number of suicide attempts and mental health challenges we saw in the region. He contacted the MCPC who quickly mobilized their Suicide Prevention Committee, conducting a call for artists that saw designs submitted from across the country. They selected a design with a simple, but powerful, message submitted by a local artist.

In less than a week, 60 volunteers came together to paint the mural, including Coalition members, community members, and students.

WITH YOU, THE WORLD IS COMPLETE.

A dedication ceremony was held on December 8, where the final design was unveiled, and local elected officials, including the Dayton Mayor, joined the celebration.

“Turning a 36 foot long blank purple wall into a masterpiece isn’t an easy feat, but with 60 dedicated volunteers, 1 visionary artist, and lots of hot chocolate, we made it happen,” said Amy Hamilton, co-chair of the Suicide Prevention Committee. “The message of hope that the suicide prevention committee brought to the Old North Dayton neighborhood will be a beacon of light that this community will enjoy for many years to come.”

Now, the mural is a standing reminder that a small group of volunteers can make a huge impact – while reminding community members that the world is truly complete with them in it.

TOPHER PECK

Topher Peck got his start in prevention work during his undergrad at the University of Dayton, where he was an active member of PAVE, a peer-education student organization focused on reducing power-based personal violence on UD's campus. After graduating last year, Topher was brought on at YWCA Dayton's Center for Survivors of Sexual Violence as their Prevention Educator. In his role at the CSSV, Topher can be found all over the Dayton area starting conversations and leading trainings on topics such as healthy relationships, communication and consent, bystander intervention, and gender socialization and sexuality.

Topher has brought his work to several local schools, college campuses, and other community partners, as well as bars and restaurants through the Gem City Safe Bars program, which he facilitates. Within the MCPC, Topher is an active member of the Power-Based Violence Subcommittee, co-chaired by his friend and predecessor, Megan Garrison. Outside of work, Topher is known for his love of obscure horror movies and for running the occasional game of Dungeons & Dragons for his friends.

I love being a part of a collaborative of like-minded individuals who value education within our community above all else. Both the work I've been able to do as a part of this coalition and especially the connections I've formed with the people within it have been invaluable to my development as a young professional."

– TOPHER PECK

SARAH BADGER

Sarah Badger began her work in prevention by using her language skills to serve the Deaf and Hard of Hearing community as a preventionist. Along with a passionate team, she was able to expand the program to include an after-school program for Deaf teens and host an overnight summer camp for hearing children of Deaf adults (KODAs). KODA Camp was her passion, and still is to this day through her volunteer work.

Driving by the Goodwill Easter Seals' Marquee on Main Street and seeing "job opportunities – apply today", she thought it would be an amazing fit to work for their team. After serving the Deaf community for 8 years, she was offered the great opportunity to work with her "dream team". At Goodwill Easterseals, she educates the community on the dangers of misusing prescription medications through the Generation Rx program. She also serves students in Montgomery County in Goodwill's Life Skills program. From her experiences living in an intentional community in Yellow Springs, she is a great believer in the spirit of community and collaboration. She volunteers with several committees on the MCPC because of that. Prevention is her passion and she is eternally grateful for the opportunities awarded to through the MCPC, her employers, and her community.

OPIOID WARNING STICKER POLICY

For several years, volunteers on the Montgomery County Prevention Coalition have provided local pharmacies with free opioid prescription warning labels. Pharmacy staff were asked to place labels on opioid prescriptions to let patrons know they were taking a potentially addictive substance. The response from partner pharmacies was extremely positive, and the education was effective in protecting our community members.

Based on this successful pilot project in Montgomery County, the Opioid Prevention committee created a goal to mandate warning labels for all opioid prescriptions statewide, and turned to the Policy & Advocacy committee for help. “We began working with legislators and the Ohio Board of Pharmacy to have a requirement for a warning label on opioid prescription containers,” said Kery Gray, co-chair of the Policy & Advocacy committee. The Policy & Advocacy committee began its research looking into other states that had passed similar laws. They determined that the Ohio Board of Pharmacy had the authority to pass this mandate and crafted a letter citing local statistics, sharing success stories from other states, and encouraging them to take action. “The opioid warning stickers will provide a safety net to alert individuals to the risk of addiction,” said Brittini Long, co-chair of the Opioid Prevention Committee.

And take action they did! Staff members from the Ohio Board of Pharmacy soon reached out and worked with MCPC leaders to craft a recommendation for the Board to approve. After a few months, even better news arrived. Two State Representatives from Ohio reached out to the Board, eager to learn more about action legislators could take to help reduce opioid use and overdoses. This led to the MCPC’s recommendation being incorporated into Ohio Senate Bill 652, which would require opioid warning labels for all pharmacies across Ohio. SB652 has been referred to the Senate Health Committee and is hopefully on its way to becoming law.

DIGITAL DETOX

Look around a crowded room, a restaurant or public transportation. What you'll probably see is almost every eye glued to a device. Though technology can be convenient and helpful, the dependency on technology is continuing to grow and was exacerbated by a pandemic where individuals relied on it to attend classes, collaborate on work meetings, and keep up with their friends and family. While we've seen an increase in mental health disorders in youth in our community, we assume we can credit this at least partially to an increase in technology and social media use.

The Gaming & Gambling Committee set out to change this by creating Digital Detox 101, an online resource to educate community members on the negative sides of technology - and offer alternatives to its use. The Digital Detox website includes a "101 Things to Do in Dayton" resource that offers families activities to get out of the house together and ditch their cell phones in the process. This resource has activity ideas for every season and includes several free and easy accessible options to work with every family's budget. The Gaming & Gambling committee worked together to compile and endorse this list, while also urging that it be more inclusive and accessible for all.

This resource has been widely requested across the community. Several news channels have requested more information and interviews from MCPC staff. The Gaming & Gambling co-chairs were asked to speak about the resource at a local school's resource fair. Several schools have reached out to ask for resources to provide to their students and families. The Gaming & Gambling committee even created a "Summer Tech-Free Challenge" to encourage families to put down their devices and complete several challenges together throughout the summer months. "As a committee, we hope that this can assist families in putting the electronic devices away in order to create more family bonding time."
